

Hey there!

After our tragedy last week, we had a much-needed exploration weekend. We got to do two of our favorite things: attend flea markets and play in the dirt!

Saturday was the first day of the newly instated Malta Drive-In Flea Market. Thinking about meeting new people and seeing what goods we could find felt a bit nostalgic. The drive-in still has an old snack bar and you can imagine what things were like when drive-ins were the best part of a Saturday night.

It ended up being raining and cold but we planned our whole day around being there so we gave it a go. It ended up being worth it in the end. This post talks about our finds!

On Sunday, I got to get a little dirty with the older girls. My middle girl came with me to a local greenhouse to pick out some flowers to plant. It's very important to me to spend quality one-on-one time with all of my kids. Each relationship needs to be nurtured no matter how busy life gets.

---

We ended the day by planting the girls own gardens outside their windows and putting together some hanging planters. It's so nice having color outside!

---

Our projects are coming along faster than we expected so we are reevaluating where to go from here. I'd like to say we're going to relax and enjoy our home but then I'd be lying! We always find another project to tackle!

---

Hope you are enjoying your spring. Share some of your projects, we'd love to see how creative you can get!

And always remember, #lovethelifeyoulive!
