

With any holiday, our routines get a little off-kilter but we do our best to make it all work. Last Memorial Day our youngest daughter was born. This year we celebrated her birthday!

Memorial Day weekend is usually when we install our garden for the year, but as you can see, that didn't happen! This upcoming weekend Chris' dad is bringing his tractor down so we can get the sod removal and tilling done quicker. I'll be at work (adulting is so inconvenient) so it'll be the boys all on their own to figure it out. Fingers crossed all goes well! Deep down I'm kind of sad that I won't be there to see the full process. Again, that adulting thing is so inconvenient!

Last week I mentioned I'd be updating you all on my initial seed starting adventure. If you haven't had a chance to read it, it can be found here, right where I left it! Take a peek and let us know what you think!

Father's Day is quickly approaching. If you are still having trouble finding that perfect gift for the outdoorsman in your life, we have a list just for you!

It's all here on our Father's Day 2018 Gift Guide!

I hope you all are having a wonderful late spring week! And always remember to #lovethelifeyoulive,

Christina
